His primary areas of interest are law and religion, Jewish law and ethics, and comparative religious law. Besides Jewish law and family law, Professor Broyde has taught Federal Courts, Alternative Dispute Resolution, and Secured Credit and Bankruptcy. He received a juris doctor from New York University and published a note on the law review. He also clerked for Judge Leonard I. Garth of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Professor Broyde is ordained (yoreh yoreh ve-yadin yadin) as a rabbi by Yeshiva University and was a member (dayan) of the Beth Din of America, the largest Jewish law court in America. He was the director of that court during the 1997–1998 academic year, while on leave from Emory. Outside of Emory, Professor Broyde was the founding rabbi of the Young Israel synagogue in Atlanta, a founder of the Atlanta Torah MiTzion kollel study program and a board member of many organizations in Atlanta. Professor Broyde has published more than 75 articles and book chapters on various aspects of law and religion and Jewish law, including “A Jewish Law View of World Law,” Emory Law Journal 54: 79-93 (spec. ed., 2005), about how Jewish law might classify international law, and a series of vigorous exchanges in several publications on military ethics in Jewish law. He also has published a number of articles in the area of federal courts, including an article in the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy on the impeachment process.

JONATHAN BURNSIDE
Jonathan Burnside is Professor of Biblical Law and teaches Criminal Law, Jewish Law and Jurisprudence. He has degrees in Law and Criminology, both from the University of Cambridge, and a Doctorate in Law from the University of Liverpool. He joined the School of Law as Lecturer in 2001, becoming Reader in 2007 and Professor in 2012. Previously, he spearheaded 'Relational Justice' for the Jubilee Centre, Cambridge, and was appointed by the Home Office and the Prison Service England and Wales to head an evaluation of faith-based units in prisons in England and Wales.

His work explores the relationship between law, theology and criminology from theoretical and applied perspectives, beginning with „Relational Justice: Repairing the Breach“ (1994, Waterside Press) and including „My Brother's Keeper: Faith-based units in prisons“ (2005, Willan). Within the School's Centre for the Study of Law and Religion he addresses some of the ways in which faith-based bodies of law vie to govern normative behaviour, in ways that may coincide or conflict with the dominant legal order. His work on biblical law includes „The Signs of Sin: Seriousness of offence in biblical law“ (2003, Continuum) and, most recently, „God, Justice and Society: Aspects of Law and Legality in the Bible“ (2011, OUP).

He has served as Independent Advisor to the Correctional Services Accreditation Panel (Ministry of Justice) and the National Offender Management Service.
